Recording artist and philanthropist SIR IVAN known for his awe-inspiring events at his castle in Southampton, took the show down to Miami this past Monday to celebrate his 60th birthday and the launch of his forthcoming album Peaceman Shines, complete with body painted girls, his iconic Peacemobile and an “audition” for SIR IVAN to find his party Queen.

Yes, his Queen.

The Top Ten Billboard recording artist had a champagne fueled bash for over 600 guests at the newly renovated Nautilus Hotel, part of Sixty Hotels, a collection of luxury lodgings including New York’s chic 60 Thompson, established by the Pomeranc brothers, Jason, Michael and Lawrence, and long-time collaborator Stephen Brandman.

With the party in full swing, SIR IVAN pulled up in style, in his eye-catching Peacemobile covered in iconic 60s hippy flower images and the 60s slogan “Make Love Not War.”

Donning his signature white silk custom Peace cape-suit and a crown of gold and rubies, the self-proclaimed Party King, made a grand entrance, flanked by two beautiful topless models body painted as lionesses and wearing stilettos, black patent leather go-go shorts and spiked collars and leashes. One female lioness model escaped the party shortly upon her arrival.

As the party carried on, some guests got cozy on this cool Miami night under plush blankets, while some revelers took a dip in the pool or threw their friends in for a swim.

SIR IVAN oversaw the festivities from his royal throne.

Throughout the night, female guests seated themselves in the second throne next to him and auditioned to be his Party Queen.

Not sure if the lady in yellow walked away with the crown.
